

Christopher Redwing
Statement of Goals - PBInc
02/20/2012

1. To learn the step-by-step process (as far as one exists) in crafting and initiating local policy with the assistance of non-profit, state and federal resources.
2. To understand the real-life political difficulties standing in the way of policy and make a concerted attempt to work through them when and where it is possible.
3. To manage a project at least partway or be involved in the coordination process.
4. Attempt to extract similar points of success from PBInc's work in this village and other organizations in other areas that could be exported to other villages across the US.
4. To find an opportunity to determine whether the idea of worth as a primary factor is useful in a practical sense in working through policies.

Ideal Job out of college: Policy analyst at the state level, or high-level position in a local village/town to get another perspective of problems localities have to deal with on a regular basis.

Ideal Job in the future: Working at the UN as a diplomat, potential run for office.